

Recommended Knots For Frog Hair

When it comes to fighting and landing large trophy fish, the most vulnerable piece of tackle is the tippet. Frog Hair, Frog Hair FC and Deep Blue, are the most advanced fish fighting lines ever produced. But even so, a poorly tied knot or choosing one that lacks strength will surely be the demise of the battle. After extensive lab testing, along with field testing by noted anglers and Gamma pro-staff members, we recommend the knots in this listing. We suggest that you learn to tie these knots and put them to use.

*Remember to lubricate all knots before tightening and to wear gloves when securing knots in 20lb and above strengths.

Eugene Bend Knot

Step 1.

Thread tippet through the hook eye, and then run back up along standing main line. Next, form a long loop by taking the tag end back towards the hook. Hold tag end and hook eye between thumb and index finger.

Step 2.

Wrap the long, formed loop around the standing line 3 times.

Step 3.

Now bring the tag end away from the hook and back up through the loop.

Step 4.

Pull the tag end until the knot is snug, not tight. Wet the knot.

Step 5.

To tighten the knot, pull slowly on the standing line until the knot seats against the hook eye. When done correctly, you will feel and hear a slight click or "pop".
